Indications Of Veto Seen

President To Talk To Nation Tonight On Farm Measure

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today vetoed the farm bill.

He will go on the air at 10 p.m., EST, to explain his rejection of the measure which becomes through his veto, a sure major issue in the election campaign.

In his veto message, Eisenhower told the lawmakers the high price support bill "would do harm to every agricultural region of the country and also to the interests of consumers."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House announced today that President Eisenhower will go on the air tonight "to talk to the people of America on the farm bill."

It also was announced, amid strong indications of a veto, that Eisenhower would act on the controversial measure during the day.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters at an unusual 8 a.m. news conference "there will be a statement on the bill" some time during the day.

Hagerty later said the President would issue "a statement or message" today. He said he could not elaborate.

His use of the word "message," however, was another indication the President would reject the "high parity" farm bill since a veto usually is accompanied by a message to Congress while a presidential signature on a bill is not.

To Meet Governors

The announcement preceded by only an hour a session between Eisenhower and three Republican Midwestern governors, all of whom favor the farm bill as passed by Congress.

Eisenhower has described the measure, containing many price support-boosting features which he opposes, as "not a good bill."

Hagerty declined to say whether the statement he referred to would be a veto message, but other sources said they were confident it would be.

Eisenhower's broadcast will be

Giant Teamsters Union Faces Suspension From AFL-CIO

WASHINGTON (AP)—The giant teamsters union faced the possibility of AFL-CIO suspension in a showdown meeting today between AFL-CIO President George Meany and teamsters chief Dave Beck.

Russian Leaders Head To England

May Make Proposal
For Disarmament

LONDON (AP)—Speculation centered today on the imminent visit of the Soviet chiefs of state. Britons wondered whether they might make a dramatic proposal to end the disarmament deadlock or even offer a loan of billions in gold.

Premier Bulganin and Communist party chief Khrushchev, known as the "Kremlin Twins—B and K" in every British household, are en route to England in the Soviet cruiser Ordzhonikidze.

They sailed Sunday from the Baltic port of Kaliningrad. Thousands of Soviet citizens shouted "Happy voyage," a Moscow dispatch said, and Khrushchev waved his black fedora in acknowledgment.

The Soviet cruiser is due at the English Channel harbor of Portsmouth Wednesday morning.

A cryptic Moscow radio broadcast touched off the speculation about a disarmament proposal.

"We feel sure that the Soviet leaders' visit to Britain will help break the deadlock in the matter of disarmament," a commentator said in an English-language broadcast. He did not elaborate.

A subcommittee of the five big UN atomic powers—the United

Meany was reported ready to start suspension action against the teamsters unless Beck agrees to cancel his union's alliance with a dock workers union ousted on charges it was dominated by gangsters.

Beck, in advance of his scheduled meeting with Meany Monday morning, defended the teamsters' mutual aid pact with the International Longshoremen's Assn., (ILA), a union expelled from the old AFL in 1953 on corruption charges.

Meanwhile, Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) said he was disappointed with "slow progress" by the AFL-CIO and federal and state prosecutors in following up on welfare-pension fund scandals dug up by a Senate labor subcommittee.

The committee, headed by Douglas, made public Sunday night a report winding up a two-year investigation. It said "shocking abuses" ranging from embezzlement and kickbacks to mismanagement and waste require immediate federal legislation to safeguard the multibillion dollar funds.

It recommended registration with the government of virtually all types of employee benefit plans with required annual reports disclosing to beneficiaries and the public their detailed financial operations.

Criminal penalties would be provided for filing false data or for diverting money intended for worker benefits. Douglas said mere disclosure of all facts would serve to keep custodians of the funds more careful. But he recommended that individual states enact stricter curbs.

Grace Kelly, Prince Rehearse Their Wedding

Couple Nervous;
$140,000 Party Held
In Their Honor Sunday

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Grace Kelly and a nervous Prince Rainier went through a rehearsal today for their marriage ceremony.

The American film star had a strained look on her beautiful face and Rainier bit his finger nails during the rehearsal of the religious ceremony which will take place Thursday.

Grace's bridesmaids also appeared at the cathedral for the runthrough.

The couple will take part in a civil ceremony on Wednesday. Marcel Portanier, Monaco's justice minister who will officiate at that ceremony said Grace will automatically become a citizen of Monaco.

To Be a Monacan

"What repercussions this may have in the country she comes from, I do not know," he told newsmen. "But when I marry Miss Kelly and Prince Rainier, she'll be a Monacan."

Told that the Prince's American chaplain, the Rev. Francis Tucker, predicted that Grace's marriage will "last forever," Portanier said: "As the man who'll marry them first... I hope the marriage will last forever too."

The justice minister, who is the highest legal authority in Monaco added:

"We are certainly not expecting it, but should Miss Kelly, or the Prince ever want a divorce they'll have to apply for it in Monaco."

"We would never recognize an American, Mexican, or any other kind of divorce but a Monacan one."

Father Tucker raised the question of divorce from his pulpit in St. Charles Church Sunday appealing to all people to "end this nightmare of disbelief."

Sunday night the community gave one of those once-in-a-century parties to welcome the blonde from Philadelphia.

The $140,000 price tag for the gala dinner at the sumptuous Sporting Club across the street from Monte Carlo's famed gambling casino was the preliminary estimate of one of the organizers. It will take weeks before the actual cost can be totaled.

It was much more than a dinner of caviar, duckling, lobsters and champagne for some 400 guests. It included a ballet, vaudeville show, fireworks display and the brightest social spectacle the Riviera has put on in many seasons.

Grace, holding hands with her prince on the balcony behind a barricade of banked flowers, seemed enraptured by it all.

There was as much excitement outside the club as inside. Out in the rain dozens of photographers trying to get close to Grace and Rainier had a sprightly pushing match with police.

Grace heard some booing from the damp photographers and the Prince appeared displeased.

But Monacans said the demonstration was not by the home citizenry and did not reflect on their hospitality.

The Prince, wearing white tie and tails, his chest bright with medals, had recovered his smile when he joined the scene within.

The Sporting Club, which has little to do with sports, is the community's social center.

Chorus Receives $90 For Trip To Contest

A total of $90 has been donated to help pay the expenses of the Salem High School Chorus in attending the state music contest in Columbus.

Cost of bus transportation for the chorus will be $325 and since the chorus has no sponsoring unit, a public appeal for funds was made last week. Contributing the $90 were the Moose, Elks and Kiwanis Clubs.

The chorus won a superior rating in the recent district contest to become eligible for the state event.

Donations may be sent to F. Edwin Miller, the chorus director, at the high school.

Couple Burned To Death In Westville Lake Blaze

Tornado Kills At Least 21 In Alabama

More Than 200 Hurt,
Toll May Go Higher

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A tornado swirling and twisting through the outskirts of Birmingham killed at least 21 persons, injured more than 200 and left 400 persons homeless.

A Red Cross official said the winds Sunday night destroyed more than 100 houses clustered on hills west and north of this industrial city. Hundreds of houses received lesser damage.

"We've counted 21 bodies and there may be others," said Roscoe Whately, Red Cross director here. Most of the dead were Negroes.

Most of the dead and injured were at McDonald's Chapel, a suburb of 3,000 population just outside the northwestern city limits.

Winds also felled Sandusky, New Georgia and Sayreton, other suburban areas.

Fire Breaks Out

Fire engines joined the confusion at McDonald's Chapel when fire broke out in some of the ruined houses.

Approximately 150 persons were admitted to Birmingham hospitals. Some were treated and released but most were confined for treatment.

Whatly said an emergency ward had been set up in a union hall in Ensley, an industrial suburb, where 30 of the less seriously injured were admitted. The awesome roar of the approaching storm gave sufficient warning for many to take shelter before their houses were blown to splinters.

Roy J. Self, 56, hid under his service station.

"I got under the station and had been there about 30 seconds when the building tumbled over and went crashing down an embankment and against a hill," he related.

"I just can't tell you what it was like—like going over a waterfall," said Mrs. Margie Blake, 29, Sayreton, who suffered a deep cut between her eyes. "The next thing I knew the house was gone and we are piled all around with the rain pouring on us."

Huntsville Hit

Another twister struck Huntsville in North Alabama, causing heavy damage but no known injuries.

Tuscaloosa, Anniston, Centreville, Montgomery, Dothan and Mobile also felt high winds.

A severe thunderstorm with hail and wind gusts up to 60 miles per hour pelted the devastated area Sunday night while relief operations were in progress.

Most of the dead were found in wreckage left in the wake of the storm. Mrs. Betty Duncan, 30, lay with her 3-year-old son Rodney in her arms and Melvin Duncan, 8, sprawled nearby. All three were dead.

The Red Cross and Salvation Army set up relief centers and provided food and shelter for the homeless. National Guardsmen patrolled the area and set up a rescue center.

Four Grass Blazes Keep Firemen On The Run

City firemen were called out to extinguish four grass fires Saturday. No damage was reported.

Firemen answered an alarm at 11:28 a.m. at the home of Carl Lipplatt, 1742 N. Ellsworth Ave.

At 4:47 they were called out to extinguish a grass fire at the home of Arthur Rice of 231 N. Roosevelt Ave.

Firemen extinguished a field fire at the home of Mary Johnstone, Benton Rd., at 2:34 p.m. At 9:10 p.m. they were again called out to the same location to put out a grass fire.

Israel Musters Military Might

Parade To Be Held
On Nation's Birthday

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Israel mustered its military might today for a show-of-strength parade in a land where many fear the next shot might touch off a big war.

The show marks Israel's eighth anniversary as an independent Jewish state born in the fires of war with four Arab neighbors—Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon.

It comes on the eve of Dag Hammarskjold's arrival on a U.N. mission to stamp out the new flames of conflict between Arab and Israeli.

Border Area Quiet

The border area was comparatively quiet but uneasy in the wake of the U.N. secretary general's first week of on-the-scene persuasion.

An Egyptian spokesman charged that Israel had violated Hammarskjold's newly invoked cease fire eight times in the past 48 hours.

The spokesman said Israelis fired into the Egyptian-held Gaza Strip five times Sunday and two Israeli planes had flown over the strip for five minutes Saturday.

"We kept our word to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold and refused to return one single shot," he said.

To Unveil Jets

The big feature of Israel's military show is the unveiling of 12 French Mystere Jets. They will swoosh over the northern port of Haifa as the high point of the parade.

The modern jets were brought to Israel under a cloak of secrecy to meet the threat of Egypt's MIG15 jets and 40 Soviet Ilyushin bombers.

Forestry Scholarships Again Available To County Youths

Five Columbiana county boys or girls are eligible to attend the sixth annual Ohio Forestry Association training camp to be held July 22-29 at Camp Pi-Chi, three miles south of Chardon in Geauga County.

The scholarships were established by Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., in memory of the late William H. Vodrey of East Liverpool, whose forest conservation practices through the years brought him state recognition.

Applications for the scholarships will be available soon at the office of Columbiana County Farm Agent Floyd Lower, 113 S. Market St., Lisbon.

The scholarships are open to either boys or girls between 15 and 19 years who have an interest in conservation problems and have shown qualities of leadership. Applicants will be screened by a committee headed by Mr. Lower.

This year's campsite is part of a 600-acre forest owned by the Bass Lake Community. The modern camp is equipped with good facilities for teaching forestry-in-the-woods to the 120 campers who will attend. The facilities include swimming, baseball, volleyball and tennis. The program for the week includes the instruction in forest woods management, wood utilization, influences of forests on soil, water and wild life, and forest fire control. The week will be climaxed with a tour of a commercial logging operation. Chapin state forest and some other interesting forest and historical spots in that area.

The staff includes eight professional foresters and one wildlife expert. The camp director will again be Roy McKinley, principal of Cochocton High School. This will be Mr. McKinley's fourth year as camp director.

James Dunn of Salem, a former scholarship winner, was a counselor at last year's camp and is now studying horticulture at Ohio State University.

Alliance Girl Burns To Death In Her Home

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP)—A 7-year-old girl was fatally burned Sunday night when a can of glue exploded and set fire to her clothing in the kitchen of her home.

Carolyn Ring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ring, died in Alliance City Hospital of second and third-degree burns.

Her father said she was helping him put a new top on the kitchen sink when the glue can exploded and scattered their clothing with burning glue.

The father also was burned, but was released after treatment at the hospital.

It was believed fumes from the glue were ignited by the pilot light on the kitchen range.

James Libert Wife Victims Of Cottage Fire

Three Departments
Fight $10,000 Blaze;
Cause Undetermined

The deaths of a Westville Lake couple, who died early Sunday of a fire which destroyed their cottage, were ruled as accidental today by Columbiana County Coroner Ernest R. Sturgis.

James Libert, 33, and his wife, Margaret, 31, were found dead in the ruins of their four-room frame cottage at Doyle's Lane, Westville Lake, RD 2, Beloit, after a $10,000 blaze.

Fight Blaze 2 Hours

Sebring, Beloit and Damascus fire departments were called to the fire at 1:44 a.m. Sunday and battled the flames for two hours. The cause of the fire is undetermined.

Libert's body was found on a couch in the living room where he apparently had been sleeping, according to Sebring Fire Chief John Watson. His wife's body was in a sitting position in a utility closet adjoining a bedroom where she was apparently trying to escape the flames, Watson said.

Neighbors said the couple had been away for several days and had returned only a few hours before the fire.

Neighbor Discovers Fire

A neighbor, Ross Hillis, discovered the fire.

The couple were former residents of Salem. Libert was employed for a number of years by the former Mullins Manufacturing Corp. He was an employee of Armour & Co. in Alliance at the time of his death.

Mr. Libert, born in Salem Jan. 19, 1903, was the son of John and Jeannette Wymer Libert.

He married the former Margaret Carlie in New Castle, Pa., in 1935. They are survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ray Zepernick of RD 1, Salem and Mrs. Michael Fuesek of RD 3, Canfield; a son, James Libert II of Youngstown; and seven grandchildren.

Mr. Libert's other survivors are three sisters, Mrs. Austin Rankins of Lisbon, Mrs. Rena Horton of Washingtonville, Mrs. Hattie Cline of West Brighton, Pa.; two brothers, John Libert of Leetonia and Roy Libert of Marion, Ind.

NAACP Official Sees Negroes Voting GOP

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Gloster B. Current, director of branches for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, Sunday said there are indications that Negroes will desert the Democratic party this year in large numbers.

He made the prediction in a speech to about 300 members of the Nashville NAACP opening their 1956 membership campaign.

"May those who want civil rights legislation adopted expect Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, to cooperate to push legislation through his committee?" Current asked.

"With the Southern Democrats in control of standing committees of Congress, election of a Democratic Congress insures the continuation of men like Eastland in control of the party machinery."

"The Northern Negro voter who has supported the Democratic party in the past since 1940, will not neglect to use the ballot in the pivotal states where the Negro holds the balance of power."

"Already, some preliminary returns indicate that Negroes will desert the Democratic party this year in large numbers."

Boys Trapped In Mud; One Dies

Pair Take Short
Cut To Go Fishing

MARTINS FERRY, Ohio (U) — Two school boys on a spring-time fishing jaunt sank waist-deep in mud. One died and the other was rescued Sunday after 16 horrifying hours as a prisoner of the muck and grime.

"I knew I'd get out," said Alex Lishick, 10, of Adena.

His school chum, Mike Stanko, 8, was afraid of death "because he would die before he made his first communion," Alex related from his hospital bed at Martins Ferry Hospital.

"We were taking a short cut on our way to go fishing," said the fourth grade pupil. "When we got to this real soft place, we fell down a couple of times and finally we fell down and couldn't get up."

"This real soft place" was the spoil bank of a strip mine near Adena in Jefferson County. In strip mining, the ground is stripped away to get at the coal instead of digging a shaft to the vein as in conventional mining.

"I wasn't scared because I had to keep telling Mike that we'd be saved," Alex said. "All we talked about was being saved."

From 150 to 200 persons searched for the boys Saturday night and Sunday morning. Finally a group of teen-agers heard Alex crying.

Shortly before the rescuers arrived, Alex said, "Mike fell on his face in the mud. Then he got up and spit some mud out of his mouth and then fell down again and died."

The first thing Alex told his mother, Mrs. Alexander Lishick, was, "Mommy, I lost the belt you gave me out there because I tried to use it to pull me out." He explained he tried to attach it to a root in the mud in an attempt to get out.

Mike, a second grader at St. Casimir's parochial school, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stanko.

HAYDEN, Utah (U) — The man who mailed a bank building, brick by brick, from Salt Lake City to Vernal, Utah, has died after an illness at his home here.

He was William Horace Coltharp, 72, president of the Bank of Vernal.

Back in 1919, Coltharp decided to mail the bricks from his two-story bank via parcel post when he found he could save $1.45 a hundred pounds over rail freight rates that way.

The post office later changed its regulations to prevent similar mailings, but Coltharp got all his bricks to Vernal. The bank they built is still standing.

MONTGOMERY, W. Va. (U) — Perry Bennett, 27, of Athens, Ohio, one of four men who broke out of the Jackson County, Ohio, jail last Wednesday, was being held today by Fayette County, W. Va., authorities.

State Trooper V. N. Brackenridge said Bennett was unarmed and "surrendered freely" when officers early Sunday went to the home of a relative where he had been staying.

Bennett, charged with safe cracking, and three companions broke out of the jail by sawing through two bars in the bulge.

One escapee, Noah Sublett, 23, of Boone County, W. Va., was caught the next day near an abandoned get-away car five miles west of Pomeroy, Ohio. Sublett had been jailed on a morals charge.

Still at large are Arthur Bruce, 22, of Oak Hill, Ohio, charged with auto larceny, and Buster New, 27, of Thurman, Ohio, charged with breaking and entering.

Ohio authorities are to come for Bennett Tuesday, Brackenridge said.

THE RIGHT TO KNOW

U.S. Unwittingly Aided Kaiser In 1917

This is the first of a series of 12 articles from the book, "The Right To Know," by Kent Cooper, former general manager of The Associated Press. In these articles Mr. Cooper draws on his background of more than 45 years with AP to tell the inside story of some of the biggest news controversies of the century.

By KENT COOPER

By North American Newspaper Alliance

All through January of 1917, President Wilson's adviser, Col. E. M. House, with the sanction of the President, was doing a little coaxing of the dove of peace on his own account. According to some of those in the confidence of the President, the colonel hoped to gain the cooperation of Count Von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador in Washington.

Col. House urged the ambassador to gain assurances from the German imperial government that it would rely upon President Wilson's befriending Germany in a proposed effort by the President to gain acceptable peace terms. Von Bernstorff expressed interest but said that the United States government had embargoed transmission of his communications with Berlin by wireless or cable, except such messages as were in plain language free from code.

The ambassador inquired if Col. House wanted him to send the colonel's proposal by wireless in unvoiced language. If he did, the British could copy it.

IT WAS SAID that the colonel demurred at that, and that Von Bernstorff then asked if the State Department would send the proposal for him in his own secret German code to the American ambassador in Berlin for delivery to the German government, all without furnishing either the State Department or the American ambassador in Berlin with a copy of the code or even a decoded copy of his message.

The arrangement to send all the necessary code messages to and from Berlin was made. Col. House then told the ambassador privately that President Wilson was willing to propose "peace without victory" and "freedom of the seas." The ambassador's response must have been enthusiastic. Almost immediately thereafter, Mr. Wilson did include those challenging phrases in his great address of Jan. 22, 1917, which, however, gained no response from either side.

What Von Bernstorff said in his message sent by our State Department code never has been disclosed. However, one of the messages that came back to Von Bernstorff through the facilities of the State Department was later published by the State Department itself, and thus became the casus belli that brought to accomplishment the hopes of Secretary of State Lansing and other Wilson advisors who were urging the President to ask for a declaration of war against Germany.

COL HOUSE was then working for peace. Others, including Mr. Lansing, were calling for war. Actually it was the peace-hopeful House's naive strategy of trusting the Germans that brought success to those favoring a declaration of war. For while the American State Department had neither the German code in its possession or any suspicion whatever that it was being imposed upon, the British in London were trusting nobody, apparently not even the American State Department itself. The British had the German code and, as it developed, they were copying and decoding everything sent to and from Berlin.

So it was that the British Intelligence Service furnished Whitehall with whatever it was the State Department transmitted from Von Bernstorff to the American ambassador at Berlin and whatever it was the American ambassador at Berlin, acting for the German government, sent to the State Department in Washington for the latter to deliver to Von Bernstorff.

A few days before Mr. Wilson's "peace without victory" speech, Germany, in a State Department communication to Von Bernstorff, supplied England with that startling message which a few weeks later was used as news propaganda to incite this country to demand a declaration of war by Congress. Copying all wireless traffic to and from Berlin, the British must have been shocked when they found themselves copying American State Department messages in the German code. There were several of these. The one from Berlin was a long one from Berlin.

WHITEHALL RECOGNIZED at once that by giving a copy of this decoded message to President Wilson it would at least silence further demands for "peace without victory" and "freedom of the seas." Without disclosing that they had the German code, the British made discreet inquiry in Washington: Did the State Department have the German code? The answer was "no."

Th inquiry aroused suspicion in the State Department that perhaps something was wrong. England was asked whether it had the secret German code. The reply was that it did. Washington then sent to London for decoding all the messages which had been transmitted from and to Von Bernstorff. Without disclosing that it already had copied and decoded all the messages, England decided to give Washington one of them which the British felt would at east anger President Wilson—if nothing more.

Germany several times had made threats to act against this country if it did not desist from unneutral practices.

Noting the continuance of the anti-German sentiment here, however, the German government, ignoring the Von Bernstorff-House proposals and always as inept as it was aggressive, solicited an alliance with Mexico against the United States. American troops at the time were just withdrawing from Mexican soil, where they had been in pursuit of Villa the outlaw. Their presence had been resented by President Carranza.

The text of the wireless communication from Germany's foreign minister, Zimmerman, to his ambassador in Mexico through Count Von Bernstorff's private pipeline via the State Department offered financial support to Mexico if it would declare war on the United States, if the latter declared war on Germany.

THIS MIGHT occur, the message indicated, because Germany intended to prosecute the war with renewed vigor and, from Feb. 1, "The employment of ruthless submarine warfare promises to compel England to make peace in a few months."

Restoration of New Mexico, Arizona and the whole of the State of Texas to Mexico was to be the latter's reward for making war on the United States. The German proposal also included a suggestion that Mexico intercede with Japan to drop its war against Germany as England's ally and join Mexico in a war against the United States. Germany knew that, because of the refusal of this country to admit any further Japanese immigration, the Japanese ruling class had no great affection for the United States at the time.

The German message furnished all the ammunition the pro-war group needed—that is, it did provide the message was not a fake.

The proposals in the Decoded German message shocked those few who saw it, including President Wilson. All of them feared it was a hoax until later developments apparently proved it genuine. Though resumption of submarine warfare was used as the reason for Von Bernstorff's recall, the possibility that the astounding Zimmerman message was genuine roused the ire of Col. House. Increasingly he became convinced he had been imposed upon. Whether or not the message was a fake,

Mr. Wilson himself gave up hopes of playing peacemaker and urged Congress for favorable action on the "armed neutrality" bill.

STILL THERE was hesitation in giving the message to the world. If it could be confirmed as authentic, there was the problem of how to get it into the news as effective propaganda for war. For Mr. Wilson's advisers kept reminding themselves that, a little less than three months after the President's re-election, the people still remembered the campaign slogan, "He kept us out of war."

Suggestions by some officials that the President send the German note to Congress (A) without comment, (B) with comment that war could not be avoided, or (C) asking for a declaration of war, were all frowned down.

The administration knew the country was not prepared to demand a declaration of war. It also knew that an outright government exposure of the German strategy in any of the three suggested ways might bring an accusation, from those who still did not want war, that the decoded message was a fake.

TODAY'S BIG SPECIAL

at a price that will open your eyes
(and Purse)

If you're in the market for a real buy, take a good look at this one. It's a 1956 Buick SPECIAL—which means, of course, it's a big car. But look again at the price news it carries. It tells you this big Buick SPECIAL can be yours for only a few dollars more than the price of the well-known smaller cars—for even less than some models of those very same cars. (And the price we'll show you proves how true that is.) The gospel truth is—this brawny new beauty is the biggest bundle of high style and hot performance ever offered in Buick's lowest-priced Series.

Even that, though, doesn't completely explain why Buick outsells every car in America except the two well-known smaller ones. To understand the big reason, you've got to know something about how much more pure automobile you get for your money in a 1956 Buick—The extra satisfaction of commanding Buick's wallowing new 322-cubic-inch V8 engine—The extra joy and comfort of Buick's new buoyant ride, Buick's matchless new handling ease, Buick's extra solidity of structure—

The extra thrill that comes from the world's most modern transmission. For, at your option, you can also have the new double-action take-off—and the extra gas-saving mileage—of Buick's advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflo.† Those are some of the things we'd like you to know, firsthand, about the 1956 Buick. And we'll let the car itself—and that low price tag—do the talking. Will you come in—real soon—this week maybe?

†New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

Everything Else Grow

This is the time when taxpayers are wont to reminisce that the federal income tax was a trifling thing when it started in 1913—about $10 a year on a net income of $5,000 for a breadwinner with a wife and two children.

Even on a net income of five million dollars, the income tax wasn't much more than a third of one million, whereas today it is four out of the five millions.

[This is supposed to prove the income tax has turned out to be a revenue monster and something should be done about it, because Presidents Taft and Wilson and the Republicans and Democrats who let it get a foothold a generation ago never dreamed it would grow and grow and grow.]

But there is one necessary reservation to this reasoning. The founders of Federal income taxes did not expect that the United States would grow and grow and grow, either. They did not know that World War I would prove the United States possessed the international balance of power and World War II would give it primary responsibility for world leadership.

Least of all, they did not foresee an economy that would attain a gross national product of nearly 400 billion dollars and a civilian labor force of more than 65 million persons. They were as blind to these possibilities of growth as they were to the possibilities of a graduated income tax.

It was not only the income tax that grew but the national wealth which it helped to secure and on whose productivity it was levied. That, too, should be remembered when the April 15 tax deadline inspires the annual protest against high taxation. None of the protesters would want to return to pre-World War I conditions, even for an income tax of $10 a year.

President's Dilemma

Congressional politicians have President Eisenhower in a box over the farm bill.

If he vetoes it, he will be the sole target of the wrath of the farmers who want him to sign it.

If he signs it, he will get no credit. The credit will go to the congressional politicians who loaded up this 1936 Christmas basket for farm voters.

The President's dilemma is whether to let a bad bill become a bad law, or whether it would be better to have no new farm law at all than a bad one.

It is whether the White House should play cut-throat farm-bloc politics with the farm bill, or whether to put public policy ahead of politics and rebuke Congress for trying to please farmers with a mish-mash of irreconcilable ideas.

These are the things that make being president of the United States more difficult than punching out piecework on an automated machine. President Eisenhower must make the best of a bad situation.

One probability stands out clearly that he would gain nothing by signing the bill and lose nothing by not signing it. Everybody inclined to believe a return to high, rigid farm-price supports is a solution to the farm problem already has been misled by the Eisenhower-Benson policy of flexible supports and market place pricing.

A Pirate Ancestor

It is a safe bet the Communists will not give back anything Stalin ever won for them, however anxious they now are to get rid of Stalinism. They will keep the spoils of his despotism, ancestor in the family and keeping his picture ancestor in the family and keeping his picture turned to the wall in the mansion built with his loot.

In Pravda's official version of the reaction away from Stalinism, there is a remarkably clear presentation of the case for collective leadership, the problem at the heart of all government.

The "cult of the individual" that flourished under Stalin, it is pointed out, led to covering up shortcomings, like the failure in Soviet agriculture. But nowhere in the Pravda explanation—nowhere—is it acknowledged that the despotic Stalin bequeathed up the Soviet Union and the Communist bloc to the point where his political heirs could afford to put on airs of respectability.

Stalin, himself, though he is not being quoted any more, had no illusions about collectivism in the early days of Russia's conversion to industrialism. Someone had to bring order out of chaos, and he was in the right spot at the right time. Had he not been despotic, his critics would never have had the privilege of pursuing their lips and rolling their eyes over the "pirate ancestor" who set them up in business.

It may be feasible to run things collectively now in Russia, but no one ever ran a revolution that way—and Stalin was running a revolution.

Christians In Politics

By JEAN BARNETT

Catherine Marshall Campaigns For Kentuckian

WASHINGTON
Catherine Marshall says "The time has come when lay Christians must come out of their ivory towers and get into political life."

Mrs. Marshall, author of the best-selling inspirational story about her minister-husband, Dr. Peter Marshall, did just that Friday when for the first time she will depart from a nonpartisan life to make a campaign speech.

The author of "A Man Named Peter," whose story was the basis for a movie that last year out-sold even a Marilyn Monroe epic, broadcast Friday from Louisville, Ky., in support of Julian H. Goldin, Goldin is seeking the GOP nomination for senator from Kentucky in the May 29 primaries against Thurston B. Morton, former assistant secretary of state. The winner will compete for Sen. Clements' seat in the November elections.

In an interview, Mrs. Marshall said: "I feel strongly that unless God gets a foothold, through a certain type of man, in political life, the world will go to hell."

THE WIDOW of the Senate chaplain believes that the present policies of the Departments of State and defense are based on fear. She decries the stockpiling of bombs as a hopeless attempt to stave off war.

"A policy based on fear is the most inadequate and pathetic foreign policy that nations can have," she said.

Mrs. Marshall attributes the power of fear as a motivating force to lack of wisdom on how to communicate with God and receive his guidance.

"Unless we get this guidance there is no way out," she explained. "We are doomed."

Mrs. Marshall believes there are good and sincere men handling U.S. foreign policy. "But," she said, "they really do not believe you can ask God a direct question and receive a direct answer. They do not know how to get guidance from God."

The daughter of a minister as well as the widow of a minister, Mrs. Marshall believes in the separation of church and state. She said that she does not think ministers can take part in partisan politics.

"I am convinced that lay Christians should take part," she explained. "And in Mr. Goldin I see a man that God can use."

"He has humility, such as Lincolnton from God and the know-how to get this wisdom."

THE STORY of why Mrs. Marshall believes Goldin's campaign is "an amazing adventure in faith" started 12 years ago when Goldin, then an army private, read an article by Mrs. Marshall's husband that discussed the need of nations to receive guidance from God.

Goldin, who was trying to decide whether to go into ministry or law, wrote to the minister.

Dr. Peter Marshall replied that he felt the ideal was for everyone to dedicate themselves to God and explained there were times when a dedicated lawyer could do more than a minister. He advised Goldin to receive guidance from God and decide for himself.

Discharged from the army, Goldin entered law in Pineville, Ky., and later was elected to the state legislature, where he would have served until January of this year.

He resigned his seat, according to Mrs. Marshall, as the result of reading an article about the Church of the Savior, in Washington, D. C. The author of the article was Mrs. Marshall.

"This church," explained Mrs. Marshall, "makes no distinction between a full-time Christian and any other kind. Members make a total commitment of their lives to Christ. They dedicate their jobs to God."

GOLDIN BROUGHT his wife and three daughters to Washington where he became assistant solicitor for United States territories in the Department of Interior and eventually, after much study, was accepted into the Church of the Savior.

"Three months ago," said Mrs. Marshall, "Mr. Goldin received what practically amounted to a call to enter politics again. I had watched him grow as an individual and a mature Christian during his time in Washington. I now watched him wrestle with this problem."

Mrs. Marshall and other friends prayed with Goldin for guidance. "He argued with himself and with God. He had no money for a campaign," she said, "but he felt he had to do it. He resigned his job and took his family back to Kentucky to wage the campaign."

Mrs. Marshall said that although she does not know the details of her candidate's platform, she will support him because she trusts his deep sincerity in getting God's will and his ability to approach other men and receive guidance from God.

"There are a lot of Christians who believe sincerely is enough," she explained. "I have lived in Washington long enough to know that you need ability, too."

THE CAMPAIGNER, who lives in Washington with her teen-age son, said she does not know any other man in political life well enough to determine whether he would fulfill her qualifications for a political candidate.

She said that Sen. Vandenberg, a close friend of the Marshalls, was approaching this kind of vital faith before he died. She added that the prayer groups recently started by congressmen on Capitol Hill are a step toward bringing the wisdom of God into the political arena.

The Wedding

By TRUMAN TWILL

Once upon a time a prince and a princess were going to get married. They were not really a prince and a princess, though. They just seemed that way.

There was no buildup before their marriage. There didn't need to be any. They had grown up in the same block and had gone through school together. He had carried her books, and she had bandaged his wounded knee.

Her old man thought he was a good kid and liked to see him around. His old lady thought if she had a daughter of her own it would be nice to have one just like the princess.

That was the way it was while the prince and princess were growing up, except that they never thought about a partnership until one day when there was a rustle of spring—and that did it.

Everybody agreed they belonged together because they'd always been together anyway and if two could not live as cheaply as one they still could live less expensively than two, if only because of the high cost of being alone when not married, such as going to the movies twice a week.

So it was agreed there would be a wedding at her house with no one invited but the immediate families, and no reception afterward to put the bite on people for presents. She would have her favorite cousin stand up with her and his older brother would stand up with him.

And that was all there was to it, except that she wore a nicely cut new beige suit and a little hat and new shoes and some other items to mark the occasion, and he blew himself to a new blue suit.

They were married on Friday afternoon, ate supper with the family and took a honeymoon trip in a borrowed car provided by aforesaid older brother, a bachelor who had not found the right girl and was still privileged to blow himself to the pleasures of Mammon.

They were back in town Sunday afternoon, ready to pile out for work Monday morning. She was a filing clerk in an office, and he was an apprentice in a garage, and if they ever wanted to get out of two furnished rooms into a two-bedroom house with a bathroom to themselves and some installment—plan furniture they would have to double-team on income for a long time.

Everybody thought the picture of the bride in the local paper was sweet; everybody who noticed it, that is. But because it was such a quiet wedding almost no one noticed it.

The prince and the princess didn't mind. They didn't mind anything. They were just hell-bent on living as happily ever afterward as circumstances would permit, which they figured would be enough to see them straight through to the end, when they too would be able to own a car of their own, live in a housing development and have a couple of kids to keep them from being alone in their old age.

SIDE GLANCES

'I Tell You I Smell Something Burning'

A Return To Trumanism?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Eleven years ago to the day Harry S. Truman was starting his career in the White House. He was a humble man, awed by the responsibilities of his office.

He reached a high degree of popularity because he seemed to be interested in the public welfare rather than in politics.

But ambition soon seized him, and he began to listen to and accept as gospel what politicians and organization bosses told him. He dispensed favors to his cronies and made a sorry record in allowing important officials in the Internal Revenue Department, which collects the nation's taxes, to go unpunished for their misdeeds.

Out of this and other errors came the 1932 campaign cry of the "mess in Washington." One of the biggest complaints was about the corruption in the different departments of government where favors were given to special interests—even to the point of quashing prosecutions.

Today Mr. Truman is trying a comeback. He has taken to the stump, assuming that the American people have forgotten why they voted so overwhelmingly against his administration in November 1932. For, while Gen. Eisenhower was popular, he never would have won the election if the people had not been deeply dissatisfied with the incumbent administration. It was a negative verdict—against the party in power.

THE COUNTRY knew little about what the Republican policies would be, and cared less. For three years, the Democrats have had a chance to divert the attention of the public from the mistakes of the past but now Mr. Truman, fortunately, is out making speeches stirring up memories of "Trumanism" and all that it con-notes. Thus, the former President in his latest speech proudly boasts: "I know what I am talking about. I had to fire some pretty important people while I was President."

Who were those "important people"? Certainly, Henry Wallace was one of them and the whole truth about that episode wasn't revealed at that time. Mr. Truman claimed he hadn't approved a speech by Mr. Wallace delivered in New York at Madison Square Garden. But Mr. Wallace now testifies that Mr. Truman heard the speech read to him paragraph by paragraph and did approve.

Another important person "fired" was Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Here was a man who had served his country brilliantly in World War II and was making a wonderful record in handling the postwar problems in Japan.

THIS WAS APART from the matters in controversy in Korea. Yet such a distinguished servant of the people was fired without so much as the courtesy of an advance notification. Gen. MacArthur found out about his dismissal from a radio announcement.

Nor was Gen. MacArthur given a hearing. If even a minor federal employee is accused of anything, he has a chance to learn the nature of the charges, so he or his attorney can have an opportunity to answer them.

The so-called "liberals" of today make quite a point of this right. The other day the Supreme Court held that a teacher couldn't be fired summarily just for pleading the fifth amendment and had to be given a hearing. If Gen. MacArthur was guilty of insubordination, he was entitled to a court-martial proceeding.

The fact is that Mr. Truman was defiant of all rules of government as well as courtesy. He believed in one-man government. Early in 1932 he ordered the entire steel industry seized, although there was not a single statute permitting it. The Supreme Court later denounced the action as a violation of the Constitution.

MR. TRUMAN in boasting in his speech about how he fired "important people" was advising Mr. Eisenhower to fire Secretary of Agriculture Benson. The difference is that President Eisenhower recognizes sincerity and honesty and doesn't feel that Mr. Benson should be fired for his policies unless they are proved wrong. The White House is supporting the Benson policies.

More speeches by Mr. Truman will be helpful to the Republicans, because they will awaken memories of what the Truman administration stood for.

The President's secretary, James Hagerly, speaking for Mr. Eisenhower, commented: "I don't believe that Mr. Truman by his own standards can recognize accomplishment when he sees it."

There was a time when Mr. Truman was humble, but today he believes in "give 'em hell" speeches. He misjudges the intelligence of the electorate if he thinks such a technique will be effective for the Democrats against Dwight Eisenhower, whose sincerity and honesty have so favorably impressed the American people.

Into The Target Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, after leading a charmed political life for three White House years, steps right into the target area if he vetoes the farm bill.

Eisenhower has been amazingly free of criticism, at home and abroad. His allies have been blamed when things went wrong, particularly Secretary of State Dulles and Secretary of Agriculture Benson. Even the Democrats have seemed gun-shy of the popular Eisenhower until recently.

Now in this election year Eisenhower is in a spot where his sides cannot serve as lightning rods. He must make the decision on whether to veto the farm bill.

The Democrats have made failing farm income a campaign issue. The Democrats who run Congress have just passed — with the help of farm state Republicans — a bill they say will help farmers.

It's the kind of bill Eisenhower and Benson have fought against. If he signs it, the President will probably have done much to take the issue out of the campaign or let the Democrats claim they are the farmers' saviors.

If he vetoes it, the Democrats no doubt will use this to fan farmers' discontent, with dire warnings of things to come if the Republicans win the election.

This is the problem: During World War II the government put high, rigid supports under farm prices by guaranteeing farmers 90 per cent of parity for basic crops. Parity means purchasing power equal to that of other income groups.

Say the government decided a wheat farmer, in order to have purchasing power equal to that of a factory worker, should get $2 a bushel for his wheat. In this case 90 per cent of the $2 parity would be $1.80.

If the farmer found that wheat on the open market, because of an oversupply, was selling at less than $1.80, he could turn it over to the government, getting a loan of $1.80 on his crop.

If the market price on wheat went up beyond $1.80, the farmer could get back his wheat by repaying the loan, plus 3 1/2 per cent interest.

But if the market price of wheat stayed below $1.80, the farmer would let the government keep the wheat while he kept the loan money.

Eisenhower and Benson do not advocate abolishing price supports. They have argued for flexible supports of between 75 and 90 per cent of parity.

This is the Eisenhower-Benson position: Rigid, 90 per cent supports encouraged farmers to over-produce, since the government will buy their products if prices go below 90 per cent, and over-production builds a surplus which drives down market prices.

There are surpluses. Farm income has gone down. But Democrats argue lower supports do not discourage production and that, at a time of falling farm income, high, rigid supports would give farmers the relief they need.

Two years ago the administration persuaded Congress to abolish the rigid, 90 per cent program in favor of flexible supports. This year the Democratic-run Congress rammed through a bill to restore 90 per cent supports for this year only.

That's the problem facing Eisenhower now: whether to let this bill become law or veto it. There are other details in the bill which also give it political significance in an election year.

Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The Real News Newsreel

Since the Augusta course is one of the toughest on earth we don't dig how doctors can advise like to play golf there to "get away from all worries."

Voice of Average Citizen: "Let's read a Supreme Court decision and get properly CONFUSED over what the laws say."

A big Florida hotel has been bought for a million by a yachtman who came ashore to play tennis. That's one way of making sure you can play without any delay.

Road towns are disturbed over the news that John Ringling North has fired all regular circus press agents and will depend on Broadway theatrical boosters, TV and a public relations tieup. . . The circus press agent has always been a distinct type and a national institution pretty much beloved on the road for combined homespun qualities of generosity, warmth, good fellowship, etc. . . His arrival each year has for generations been an event in newspaper offices of the smaller cities. . . Over the years he really gave the circus its big buildup. . . The Broadway p.a. as a type is brilliant and capable but a great payer of favorites and not noted for generosity. . . And we don't think stuff dished out by the tub thumpers of a big city will make any hit in the sticks.

IN GOTHAM the Broadway publicity man fills the bill perfectly; Bill Field and Bill Doll are in a class by themselves, in or out of the circus field, but in Kokomo, Springfield, Chillicothe, Hartford, Kalamazoo and Beaver Hollow the full time big-top publicists like Beverly Kelly, the late Dexter Fellows, Allen Lester and Frank Braden were regarded as circus men from head to foot. . . Thousands of newspapermen looked upon them as chums and accepted their annual appearance as a heartwarming event. . . (Who remembers Major Burke, the old-time Buffalo Bill p.a., who blew in every season with handle bar whiskers, cowboy hair, a two-pound diamond and a fund of stories about Indian fighters?)

WARS OR NEAR WARS are breaking out in so many places that somebody may soon be turning out a build-it-yourself crisis kit.

Do you suppose both sides in that department store strike said, "I'll meet you in Macy's window" do you?

With the Brooklyn ball club possibly getting a new park in the heart of the borough, the Giants are now hot for the idea of a new park not far from midtown Gotham, on the Hudson River. . . The age when a fan associated the ball game with the open country and regarded a trip to the park as something of a picnic "away from it all" may be over. . . We think the ball park of tomorrow will be almost a business office annex, to which a harassed executive can run between letter dictations. . . The information "Mr. Big is in conference" can be equivalent to "Baseball game today: 2 p.m."

When a schoolteacher can get $30,000 for not being completely frank in letting parents know all about his loyalties and leanings, as in that New York school case, the clam-up would seem to come under the head of big business. . . There must be considerable "smog" in the high court when Chief Justice Earl Warren winds up in the same alley with Justices Black, Frankfurter and Douglas.

THE NEW YORK POLICE department may be said to be at war with the fire department in that latest TV jackpot program in which post "$64,000 Question" winners met challengers. . . Redmond O'Hanlon, the cop who won last season as a Shakespearean scholar meets Martin Van Outrype, a fireman again Tuesday.

bers, newly acquired from Communist Czechoslovakia.

Premier David Ben-Gurion set the theme of the somber observance in a broadcast Sunday night to the nation. He warned that if war breaks out, "our enemies will meet the power and heroism of our defense forces which will give back to the aggressor two blows for one."

"A heavy responsibility toward the history of humanity has been assumed by powers that are supplying aggressive arms to the Egyptian dictator (Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser) and also by those that deny defensive arms to Israel," Ben-Gurion charged.

Slap At Russia, U.S.

His statement was an obvious slap both at the Soviet bloc for selling arms to Egypt and the United States for denying arms to Israel.

States, Britain, Russia, France and Canada — is meeting in London on disarmament.

Some British politicians have speculated, although lightly, that the Soviet chiefs in a grand gesture might offer a loan of two or three billion dollars in gold to bolster Britain's economy.

Vandals early today daubed white paint on the statue of Communist hero Karl Marx at his grave in a London suburb. "This is one of the first of demonstrations we are going to make against the visit of those two Russians," an anonymous caller telephoned police.

Unidentified persons ignited gasoline-soaked wood shaving Sunday night in the hall outside the Soviet news agency Tass.

Democratic Women Hear Wayne Hays

Congressman Wayne L. Hays said "the current farm bill is not a perfect bill, but it is a help and should be supported" when he spoke at a meeting of the Salem Democratic Women's Association Friday in the Ruth Smucker House.

Hays referred briefly to the exploitation of this country's resources without an adequate replacement program, and rapped the administration's "lack of a coordinated foreign policy." He said our Near East policy is inadequate and confused and claimed the money going to Saudi Arabia through oil royalties is not helping the citizens of that country, but is used primarily to keep the ruler and his family in luxury.

The congressman said this country might have been able to control China only if it had been willing to sacrifice millions of young Americans. Since then, Hays said, our foreign policy has antagonized India, a natural enemy of China, into collaboration with China.

Hays said the country's big need is for a secretary of state who will stay in this country long enough to help his department make decisions which have been and are still piling up.

A capacity crowd, including guests from Columbiana and East Palestine and most of the county candidates for office, heard Hays' talk.

During the short business meeting a report on the antique chest project of the Women's Federation was given by Mrs. Dorothy Barry, who also reminded members to take their food donations to the antique show next week. Plans were discussed for a benefit to be held May 14.

Mrs. Harrold Hannay gave a report about the mental health meeting which she attended and also one regarding the recent Civic Committee anniversary dinner.

The members were asked to save sales tax stamps for the Retarded Children's project.

The association president, Mrs. Martin Lutsch Jr., introduced County Democratic chairman Don Gossney who, in turn, presented the county candidates to the group. Each candidate gave a brief talk about his qualifications and plans.

Mayor Dean Cramer gave a talk on the coming primaries.

Mrs. Hannay then introduced the main speaker of the evening, Congressman Hays.

Lunch was served.

Gene Tullis of 2140 E. State St., who was injured in December when a pole-trailer ran over him while working near Youngstown for the Ohio Edison Co., has been admitted to Youngstown South Side Hospital for further treatment.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

This column has been prepared by Victor Riesel's staff following a bedside conference with the stricken columnist.

Will the leaders of American labor catch up to the rank-and-file in the fight against mobsters and racketeers in unions?

If they want to, they'll have to move pretty fast now, for in city after city outraged union members are making it known in no uncertain terms that the attack on Victor Riesel by a hired acid-thrower was the last straw.

Within a few hours of the assault on Riesel, a telegram reached St. Clare's Hospital signed by every one of the dining room employees at Lindy's restaurant, where the columnist had stopped for coffee minutes before his assailant splashed him with sulphuric acid.

THE LINDY WORKERS are all members of a decent union. They told Vic they "are praying for his speedy recovery" of course, but that they want him to know how much they appreciate his courage, for they had to clean racketeers out of their union the hard way before decent elements took over. Dave Siegal, president of Dining Room Employees Union, Local 1, maintained a long vigil at the hospital, anxious to get some news about Riesel.

The bell-hops, elevator operators and maids in New York's big hotels, members of the Hotel Front Service Employees Union, Local 144, in addition to offering a reward of $1,000, have alerted all of their members in the city's hostelry to keep a sharp lookout for anyone answering the description of the assailant and to turn over to the police any leads they may hear about as they perform their duties. In effect, they have added 7,000 private eyes to the search for the fiend.

Rank-and-file committees from a score of unions have visited Riesel's staff to volunteer their services in any way deemed necessary.

INFORMATION by the bucketful is pouring into the office from ringed workers in unions blasted in the past by Riesel in his columns.

Perhaps the most dramatic fight by union members against corruption and entrenched bureaucracy is being made in Chicago by Pete Batallas and Bill Wilkens at the Operating Engineers Union convention. These are the two boys who were on the radio broadcast with Riesel just prior to his attack.

They have been leading the fight against the DeKoning Dynasty on Long Island which has handed down, from extortionist father to hampfisted son, control of one of the key unions in the metropolitan area.

Their courage seems to be contagious and they have been joined by groups of Operating Engineers from other cities. From Chicago come reports now that Columbo Acchione, a delegate from Philadelphia, has stood the convention on its cauldroned ear by introducing for the first time a stinging resolution condemning corruption, unethical practices and lack of democracy.

ACCHIONE's resolution calls upon the Department of Justice to probe the pockets of corruption in this union and seek to safeguard the rights of the members, many of whom are denied votes by being put in a secondary membership class. In other cases, the international union has simply imposed trusteeships over dissident locals and refused to remove them even after the passage of many years.

The resolution of the embat-led Philadelphian also lifts all current trusteeships and returns the unions to the members.

On a voice vote, the delegates, roared approval of this resolution. But the heavy-handed hierarchy of this outfit would have none of that. In the chair at the time the delegates passed the resolution was one Joe Delaney of New York, a long-time pal of the controlling clique. He called for a standing vote. The outcome was still uncertain. He called for a second standing vote and in the confusion declared the resolution defeated. The boos that followed this steam-roller tactic shook the convention hall. But the big-wigs upheld the results.

THIS WON'T END the fight in the Operating Engineers. Groups from California, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Oregon and Anchorage, Alaska, have flocked to the side of Batallas and Wilkens and pledged to keep the pressure on. They are even now, while under body-guard to prevent a Riesel-type attack on them, planning the formation of a coordinated, national reform group in this union.

Vic Riesel, in his first dictated personal statement last week issued an appeal to union members that said, "Don't let the attack on me scare you. Keep the heat on."

They're not scared. They are fighting. And maybe, as a result of their fight, the national leaders of labor will soon catch up with them and help in the war against the crooks.

Living In The Present

By HAL HOYLE

NEW YORK (U) — "I don't live in the past — I guard against it," said Thomas Loughran. "I know too many guys who got to living in the past, and ruined their lives by doing it. I never kept a scrapbook."

Loughran, a handsome, middle-aged Wall Street sugar broker, does have quite a past to recall, however, and he prefers the sweet memories.

At the age of 17, Tommy, one of seven children of a Philadelphia motorman, laced on a pair of boxing gloves in earnest.

In the next 18 years he fought (his own estimate) 227 bouts and earned "well — more than a million dollars." He fought in three classes, middleweight to heavyweight, won and resigned undefeated the light heavyweight title. He fought 23 men who were, became or had been world champions. The ring records show he was shaded 23 times, but knocked out only twice.

He was for years the incomparable "Philadelphia Adonis," one of the true boxers of history, famous for his left jab.

Tommy began as a pretty good right-handed slugger and had an early string of knockouts.

Then something happened to his right hand.

"They say I broke it, but I really didn't," he recalled. "The covering of the knuckles just got so inflamed that when I hit someone I could hardly keep from screaming."

"I went to work building up the muscles in my left. Took a year. I worked until I could hold a 10-ounce dumbbell in my left arm's length for half an hour — yes, only 10 ounces, but try it sometime—then go on and jab the bag a thousand times."

Tommy, who at 53 keeps his weight to a trim 193 pounds by working out five times a week and eating only two meals a day, looked down at the two shirred eggs on his luncheon plate and said:

"Any fighter could do what I did. But they don't train as they did in the old days. Life has become too comfortable. What has ruined more fighters than anything? It's the primrose path — taking the easy way."

"There is no more dishonesty in boxing than there is in any other profession," Loughran said. "Boxing is no worse now than it was in the old days. There's an element of badness in everything. If that would kill boxing, it would have killed it long ago."

"I was approached dozens of times to throw a match, but my manager (the late Joe Smith), would never consider a thing like that — and that's all there was to it."

Tommy does feel the boxing industry suffers now from poor promotion (too much dependence on TV) and monopoly moves by fight managers. He recognizes that young fighters are pushed ahead and outmatched to make a manager or a promoter a quick buck, but says that happened often in his time, too.

"It takes at least two years of actual fighting — 35 to 40 fights — for a man to move into the championship contending class," he said. "By then he'll be boxing about as well as he's able to."

Loughran, who says he always got more personal pleasure out of "frustrating an opponent" than beating him, divides the field into fighters, boxers and fighter-boxers.

He rates Jack Dempsey as the greatest fighter in his lifetime (he never fought him), Mike Gibbons as the greatest boxer, and Harry Greb and Mickey Walker as the finest combination box-and-sock artists.

"But Rocky Marciano is the only fighter, I ever saw who could take you out with one punch from either hand," he added. "Dempsey or Joe Louis — both great punchers—needed several blows to finish a fellow off."

Tommy himself remains a hard man to tag with a glove or a phrase. He is pleasantly cautious, quietly religious.

"I always lived a conservative life," he said. "I never drank or smoked, or got married. I always, even as a young fellow, feared the possessiveness of women. But I think marriage is a beautiful thing — for the other guy."

250,000 Expected To See Opening Games

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The defending champion Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees, on the eve of the opening of the major league season, were solid picks today to win again but that doesn't mean the other clubs should save time and energy by sitting it out.

The Yankees and Dodgers definitely appear to have the overall strength to repeat but injuries to their key men could scramble the entire pennant picture. Boston, Cleveland and Chicago in the American League, and Milwaukee, St. Louis, New York and Cincinnati in the National are rated as strong, if not stronger than they were a year ago.

The Yankees, in fact, will have three "cripples" in the lineup Tuesday as they help the Washington Senators inaugurate the home season in Washington. Mantle still has a swelling of the hamstring muscle he pulled several weeks ago. Esten Howard has a pulled groin muscle and Yogi Berra a swollen finger.

A sellout crowd of 28,578, including President Eisenhower, who will throw out the first ball, is expected to see a pair of right-handers, Don Larsen (9-2) of New York and Camilo Pascual (2-12) of Washington square off on the mound.

Approximately 250,000 spectators probably will witness the eight openers Tuesday. The largest crowd is expected at Detroit where some 45,000 will watch the Tigers inaugurate the season against Kansas City.

Righthander Frank Lary (14-15) will oppose Alex Kellner (11-8) of the Athletics' veteran southpaw.

A crowd of 35,000 in Chicago will have their eyes glued on shortstops Chico Carrasquel and Luis Aparicio and center fielders Larry Doby and Jim Busby as the White Sox and Indians come to grips for the first time. Three of these four figured in a trade last winter with Cleveland sending Doby to Chicago for Carrasquel and Busby. Aparicio, a flashy fielding young Venezuelan, will be trying to fill Carrasquel's shoes. Both teams, rated top contenders behind the Yankees, will lead with their best on the mound. Right hander Bob Lemon (18-10) will be the Indians' choice against southpaw Billy Pierce (15-10).

Only 20,000 are expected to see the Red Sox lift the curtain against Baltimore in Boston. The Red Sox are a vastly improved team with the addition of Bob Porterfield and Mickey Vernon and Ted Williams starting from scratch.

Southpaw Bill Wight (6-8) will pitch for Baltimore against righthander Frank Sullivan (18-13).

As expected, the biggest National League crowd will be in Milwaukee where the Braves will try to snap Chicago's six-game opening day winning streak. Some 43,000 will see a battle of right-handers between Milwaukee's Lew Burdette (13-8) and Chicago's Bob Rush (13-11). The Braves, with the same lineup that finished second last year, are considered the Dodgers' main threat.

The Dodgers, only team with two home openers (they will open against Philadelphia in Jersey City next Thursday), will be host to the Phillies at Ebbets Field Tuesday. About 25,000 are expected to watch the Phils' Robin Roberts (23-14) oppose Don Newcombe (20-5).

Another 25,000 is expected at the Polo Grounds to see the New York Giants take on the Pittsburgh Pirates. Southpaw Johnny Antonelli (14-16), will oppose right hander Bob Friend (14-9).

The St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Redlegs, both rated as "dark horses" in the pennant scramble, will oppose each other in Cincinnati before a capacity crowd of some 32,000.

Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, back after a two-year term in the Army, gets the nod for the Redbirds. He will be opposed by Joe Nuxhall (17-12).

OHIO OPEN SITE SET
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 1956 Ohio Open Golf tournament will be played at the Marietta Country Club July 27-29.

Robert H. Kepler, president of the southern Ohio section of the Professional Golfers' Assn., said prize money will total $2,500, with $500 for first place.

Akron Joes Win Salem Tourney; O'Neills 2nd

Akron Joes All-Stars, winning their semi-final game Saturday afternoon over Donnelly's Cafe 86-67 and the final game over "O'Neill For Governor" Saturday night 106-59, walked off with the first place trophy for the second time in three years in the Salem Invitational Tournament at the Memorial Building.

"O'Neill for Governor" stopped Cleveland Blepp-Coombs in the other semi-final tilt 82-67. However Cleveland won the consolation game over Donnelly's 80-63.

In the first game of the semi-final round Akron Joes got off to a 23-17 lead in the opening frame and extended their margin in the second period to 41-27. Akron, riding on their lead, barely nipped Donnelly's in the third period 18-17 and made it definite in the final frame as they outscored their foe 27-23 to win the tilt 86-67.

Jim Darrow and Dick Howard led the way for Akron with 24 and 23 markers respectively. Mark Dumars and Pete Culp each tallied 20 to pace Donnelly's Cafe.

THE SECOND semi-final game saw "O'Neill for Governor" win over Blepp-Coombs 82-67. The two teams battled to a 21-21 tie in the initial frame, but "O'Neills" outdied Bepps 22-14 in the second period and took command at the end of two periods 43-35.

The leaders outscored their opponents 23-16 in the third period and led 63-51 going into the final period of play. The teams battled to a deadlock in the final period again 16-16, but the margin "O'Neills" had spread in the first three periods gave them the win 82-67.

Logan dumped in 15 points to pace "O'Neills" and Joe Leklak tallied 14 to lead Bepps.

In the fray for the consolation prize, Blepp-Coombs dumped Donnelly's Cafe 80-63. They fought at an even pace in the first period and tied 20-20, but in the second stanza Donnelly's pulled ahead with a shaky 38-36 lead at the intermission.

Blepp-Coombs exploded in the third period and surprised Donnelly's with a 26 points flare, while Donnelly's meshed 14 and Bepps led at the end of three complete periods 62-52. They outscored Donnelly's again in the final period also 18-11 to win the game going away 80-63.

Blepp-Coombs received the third place trophy and Donnelly's Cafe took home the fourth place honor.

JOE LEKLAK of Blepp-Coombs went on a scoring rampage in the consolation tilt ripping the nets for a spectacular 41 points, over half of his teams total.

Akron Joes All-Stars completely routed "O'Neill for Governor" in the championship game of the tourney 106-59. Akron Joes jumped off to a 26-9 first period lead and outscored "O'Neill" 28-15 to take a 30 point lead at the half way mark 54-24.

Joes continued to outplay their opponents in the third and final periods as they outscored them 25-15 and 27-20 in the final frame to win the game in a flurry 106-59.

Jim Darrow was the big gun in the Akron attack with 27 points and Oscar Clinkscales led "O'Neills" with 18 markers.

Several stars of the O'Neill squad were unable to be present for the finals.

The Associated Press
Archie Moore continues his "honey" fight for his lightweight title defense against Yolande Pompey in London June 5 by boxing 200-pound George Parmentier of Eureka, Calif., tonight at Seattle.

With about 20 pounds to pare off before he can make his own division limit, Moore is more anxious to talk about another match with Rocky Marciano. He also is willing to box Floyd Patterson or Hurricane Jackson if the opportunity presents itself.

Miguel Berrios of Puerto Rico and Bobby Bell of Youngstown, Ohio, two busy little featherers who fought an exciting Feb. 27 bout, provide the TV entertainment tonight (DuMont) in a match at St. Nicholas arena in New York. Bell won the first fight on a split decision.

Eddie Machen, highly regarded California heavyweight, bumps up against a rated contender tonight at San Francisco in Nino Valdes, the hulking Cuban, in his most important test.

Build A Fish Pond In Your Garden

Plastic pipe of the semiflexible polyethylene type, which does not burst if water freezes in it, has opened new fields of garden improvements for the do-it-yourself handyman.

Because this pipe can be laid just under the sod at a depth of no more than 3 to 4 inches, and calls for no complicated draining system, outdoor plumbing projects are made easy for the amateur.

Pools and Waterfalls

Goldfish ponds for the garden can be kept constantly supplied with fresh water, miniature fountains and waterfalls can be constructed, underground lawn sprinkling systems can be laid, bird baths can be erected and convenient hose outlets can be provided in far corners of a property.

Deep trenching of 2 feet or more is eliminated in the use of plastic pipe. The material is handled similarly to regular garden hose. Lengths of this material can be joined with plastic couplings and stainless steel clamp. A screwdriver and a sharp knife are the only tools required.

An easy way to build a garden fish pool is to run plastic pipe from a nearby hose bib to the selected location for the little pond. Excavate and shape a depression for the pond. No concrete form is needed. The soil will give you a shaping that will be even enough.

Ready Mix Is Handy

The quickest way to line this pool is use ready-mixed dry concrete available in the hardware store and building supply houses. This mixture of cement and sand needs only the addition of enough water to make it workable. If you prefer to mix your own concrete, a mixture of 3½ parts sand to one of Portland cement should be adequate.

Line the hole with about 2 inches of concrete, sloping the bottom toward a drain hole. Connect the drain with a dry-well or other disposal with a length of plastic pipe. Use another length, connected to the dry-well for an overflow to keep the water in the pool at a desired depth.

A fringe of rocks around the pool will give you an attractive rock garden.

Murals Dress Up Your Rec Room

You can now make one entire wall of your basement recreation room command a brightly sunlit view of the rocky coast of Maine, a snow-capped ridge of the Sierras, a wild and remote river or lake scene by installing and lighting a colored photo mural.

The trick gives any basement all the glamor of a picture window. With ordinary care, such murals can be mounted and installed as a do-it-yourself project. Recessed lighting can be installed in the same way it is put in window valances and cornices. Drapes can be hung to complete the window illusion or simulated masonry walls and a foreground planting box can be created with the new wallpapers that look like brick or stone-work.

Colored photo murals of this type are now being shown in wallpaper and paint stores. One measuring 5 feet wide and 3½ feet high is priced at $35. Another, 15 feet wide and 6 feet high, runs a little less than $100.

The picture window effect is so realistic you'd think you walk through it and dive into the water.

INCOMPATIBLE PAINTS

Oil base and latex paints can't be mixed together. Oil paint is soluble in turpentine or mineral spirits; latex in water. Oil and water do not mix.

Roof Overhang Keeps the House Cool

OVERHANGING EAVES to keep the summer sun from heating a house through large window areas have become even more important with the spread of air conditioning. As shown here, floor-to-ceiling window walls can be completely in the shade at midday in summer. When the sun is lower in the sky in winter it can shine in the windows. Such overhangs are carefully planned. They have to be wider in Minneapolis than in Dallas.

Making Concrete Tough By Reinforcement

Concrete projects around the home can be the most satisfying, or the most disappointing jobs a do-it-yourself fan can undertake.

When a sidewalk, driveway, patio, curbing or steps turn out right and stay right, there is a lot of pride for the handyman. He has done something that is permanent and solid and something he can tell his grandchildren "I built this before your father was born."

But let the job crack and crumble and you have a mess on your hands.

Often the difference between concrete pavement that will stay smooth and level and a slab that cracks and heaves into hazardous bumps is merely a matter of proper reinforcement.

Why Concrete Cracks

Cracks are likely to form in almost any expanse of concrete work because of expansion and contraction, earth movement and other causes. But when the concrete is interlaced with a network of metal reinforcement the cracks are only hairlines, easily sealed and forgotten.

Without reinforcement, normal cracks in concrete widen and shift, allowing one side of the crack to rise above the other side, and you have a sharp edge and a bump.

The development of welded wire reinforcing mesh, made especially for concrete uses has simplified good concrete construction. But the improper use of such reinforcement opens the door to many of the problems that arise without its use.

How to Install It

Each strip of this steel fabric should be carefully overlapped to insure the strength at all divisions. It provides a much stronger bond when imbedded midway in the thickness of the concrete than it can provide when laid on the ground or bed under the concrete. And being welded into a continuous texture, it cannot be equalled by just any old wire or rods that happen to be handy.

The cost and value of proper reinforcement is easy to figure for any job. A ready-mix of concrete for a residential foundation slab 5 inches thick usually runs around 25 cents per square foot. This is based on the delivered price of about $15 per cubic yard. The use of welded wire fabric to strength that slab will add just about 2½ cents per square foot — about 10 per cent for lifetime insurance.

This insurance is especially important for a driveway or sidewalk. An unexpected load of a heavy truck may spell the payoff.

It's Sold by the Roll

You can get this fabric from building supply dealers in rolls 5 or 6 feet wide and running from 125 to 300 feet long. Usually you can pick up parts of rolls.

The material is easy to handle

You can cut it with ordinary wire cutters. It bends by hand for formations for steps.

An easy way to space such reinforcement midway in a slab is to pour piles of concrete here and there to support the mesh. Or you can use pieces of old brick to hold it up. Then the rest of the concrete is poured through it and raked even.

Reinforcement is vitally important in the construction of a swimming pool and it's a wise precaution in the construction of a barbecue fireplace for the back yard.

Cold Walls Chill in Warm Room

Ever shiver in a warm room, and wonder why? Cold walls can be a reason.

One of the most common mistakes in insulating houses is to neglect the walls. This happens because of the belief that heat rises. Engineers explain that heat does not always rise. Heated air rises. But heat can radiate in any direction.

Physicians have long known that bodily comfort is tied to the rate at which the body gives off the heat it manufactures. In summer, when warmer air contains more humidity, evaporation slows down and heat is given off slowly. So a person sweaters. In the drier, cold air of winter, heat shoots off, making a person chilly.

How Radiation Works

Cold walls increase the body's heat loss, even if the room is warm. This is because of radiation — the transfer of heat by waves from a warm surface to a cold one. Radiation is said to account for about 53 per cent of the body's heat loss.

Cold walls tend to decrease the usable size of a house. Sitting within three feet from a cold wall may be uncomfortable. So the family tends to huddle toward the center of the room.

Cold walls that have no cracks for leakage can still cause drafts. Heating engineers explain this by the chilling of air in contact with the wall. Since warm air rises, cold air becoming heavier, tends to sink. This sets up a continuous draft cycle.

How to Insulate Walls

Walls can be effectively insulated whether a house is old or just being built. The easiest way is to do the job while a house is under construction. Batts or blankets of insulation, such as the various mineral wools, are installed between the wall studs providing up to 3 inches of cellular heat stoppers. This not only will be a barrier to the cold in winter, but also will go far toward preventing walls and ceilings from becoming radiators under the heat of the summer sun.

In an old house, it is unnecessary to open the walls to install batts or blankets. Loose mineral wool is blown into wall cavities

Quizzing The Gardener

Q — Is it good practice to pinch out all but one peony bud for a large flower? How often should peonies be divided?

A — The disbudding of peonies, consisting of removing all of the lateral buds and leaving only the central one, results in a larger flower than would otherwise be obtained. Well established peonies that are blooming satisfactorily should not be lifted and divided. Peony plants in suitable surroundings will continue to flower satisfactorily for 20 or 30 years or more.

Q — Advise me whether the old shoots (which appear to die away over the winter) of a Clematis vine should be removed each spring.

A — Clematis shoots in spring frequently appear dead, although they are actually alive; if so they should not be cut away. If, however, they are actually dead, then you are wise to prune them in the spring. To ascertain whether the shoots are dead you may defer pruning until new growth begins, and those shoots which do not produce may be removed.

Q — What caused the leaves to fall off my potted azalea when I brought it into the house?

A — The most likely reason is that the azalea was kept in a room too hot and too dry. Azaleas should be syringed with lukewarm water twice a week and kept in a room temperature as near as possible to 65 degrees.

Q — Please tell me how to prune rose of Sharon bushes and lilacs. How can I get more blooms on the lilacs?

A — No pruning is necessary for either rose of Sharon or lilacs. Cutting out all dead wood and any suckers is sufficient. The lilacs would benefit by an application of lime and fertilizer such as super phosphate.

Q — Are annual seeds good the second year or should they be thrown away?

A — Some are good after several years while others are not. The only way to tell is to test the seed between moist cloths. In any case, the seed will probably have to be planted more thickly than fresh seed.

Q — When should a Hall's Japanese honeysuckle vine be trimmed?

A — At any time — removing all dead canes and one-third of the oldest canes too. You can cut this vine severely as it withstands much abuse.

How To Make Cedar-lined Closet In Your Home

Converting a drab closet into an attractive storage room lined with aromatic red cedar is a home handyman's job that can be done over a weekend.

Aromatic red cedar lining can be had at most lumber yards in convenient packages. Each package contains enough pieces of this fragrant wood to cover at least 32 square feet of wall area. The pieces are tongued and grooved on sides and ends to permit snug fitting.

A Chicago couple recently transformed a 3- by 5-foot closet, 6 feet high in 10 hours of work spread over Saturday and Sunday. They used about four packages of cedar lining material and including all nails and mousing, the job cost less than $50.

Here's How To Do It

To modernize a closet in this way, the first step is to remove all present moldings, books, shelves and other protrusions from wall and ceiling.

Enough pieces cut to exact sizes to cover the ceiling of the closet are then laid out. Starting at one end or side of the ceiling, the boards are then nailed through the existing wall and into the house framing for security. Plaster or wallboard is not sufficient in nail holding power. Nails driven into such soft surfaces will tend to loosen as other nails are driven.

To locate joists and studs behind a closet ceiling or walls, try a magnet to detect points at which nails hold the wallboard or lath to the framing. You can get such magnetic nail finders at hardware stores or any magnet will do.

Tapping Also Works

In most cases you will find that the joists and studs are separated 16 inches from center to center of the timber. Lacking a magnet, you may be able to locate these members by tapping on the wall. The sound will ring hollow between studs and dull over the solid areas.

In cutting a piece of cedar to fill out one course of the paneling, always remove the tongue end so the piece will fit snugly against the adjoining wall.

Thin finishing nails should be used to attach the wood to the wall. These should be long enough to allow for the thickness of the cedar, the thickness of the plaster and lath or wallboard and embed themselves firmly into the framing. Either face nailing, or toenailing under the tongue may be used. Care should be taken for concealed toenailing so that the tongue of the wood is not split.

Ceiling lining should be planned to run at right angles to the direction of the joists. After the ceiling is covered, select one wall and work from the bottom up. In this manner a molding will trim the top of the wall at the ceiling line.

Lay one course of cedar at a time, with the grooved edge of the board down and the grooved end of the first piece of each course flush against the wall. This provides a firm base for corner molding, which is applied last.

Lining the closet door with cedar is optional. It is the most attractive and adds more aromatic surface, but it is not absolutely necessary. However, it is wise to weatherstrip the closet door to keep the cedar fumes locked inside the closet where they can do the most good.

Aromatic red cedar should never be painted, stained or finished in any way. Sealing the pores of the wood will prevent the escape of the cedar aroma. Occasional dusting with a damp cloth is all the care the wood will need.

Scout Hobbles 20 Miles On Crutches For Badge

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A 13-year-old Chicago Boy Scout, his legs withered by polio, hobbled 20 miles on crutches to earn a final merit badge that'll make him an Eagle Scout.

Joel Shaeffer admitted Sunday "he was a little tired" when the 13½ hour ordeal was over. It earned him his hiking merit badge, the only one he lacked.

A scout official made the hike with Shaeffer to make sure the boy didn't jeopardize his health. Shaeffer is expected to receive his Eagle Scout award in May.

14 Persons Die In Ohio Mishaps

Weekend Has Number Of Unusual Accidents

By The Associated Press
Sometimes death strikes in strange ways. And this Friday the 13th weekend in Ohio had its share of unusual fatal mishaps.

When it was over, 14 persons were dead, nine from traffic accidents. An Associated Press survey of accidental deaths covers the period from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

Strangely, only one fatality occurred in that six-hour period of "Black Friday." It was an automobile accident that killed a clergyman's wife. The clergyman died two days later.

In Franklin County, a freight train had just pulled out of the yards when death hit without warning. A 65-year-old conductor was walking on top of the train as it moved slowly toward a signal bridge. He didn't see the bridge, and it killed him as the train passed underneath.

In Jefferson County, two young boys went on a fishing trip from which one was not to return. They became stuck in the mud of a strip mine spoil bank and couldn't get out. The younger of the two, an eight-year-old, fell headlong into the mud. That's how they found his body. A 10-year-old companion was rescued after 16 hours.

In Akron, a 700-gallon ammonia tank exploded in a rubber factory. One man was killed, four others were injured. It was the second fatal incident to occur in the plant in one week.

Friday night:
The Rev. Alexander R. Lembke, 68, and his wife, Emma, 66, of Williston, in an auto collision on a country road west of Fremont.

Rev. Lembke died Sunday in Toledo Hospital.

Saturday:
Harvey Gill III, 6, Youngstown, hit by an auto in the city.

Estle M. Stroup, 68, Akron, in an explosion of a 700-gallon ammonia tank at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber plant in Akron.

William G. Hornung, 65, a railroad conductor from Bellville, when his head struck a metal signal bridge as he walked atop a freight train in Franklin County.

Lawrence Oditt, 25, Middletown, when his motorcycle was struck by a locomotive at a Middletown crossing.

Sherman Brand, 70, Toronto, Ohio, struck by a car on Ohio 7 about two miles north of Steubenville.

Sunday:
James Libert, 53, and his wife, Margaret, 51, in a fire which destroyed their home at Westville Lake in Columbiana County.

Harry Lint Scott, 26, Hamilton, when his car crashed into a culvert in Hamilton.

Phyllis Bross, 70, Indianapolis, Ind., in a two-car collision at the intersection of Ohio 29 and 49, about 11 miles west of Celina.

Michael Stanko, 8, Adena, found stuck head-first into a strip mine spoil bank near that Jefferson County town.

Richard D. Mosser, 23, Marietta, when his car collided with a truck on Ohio 7 about four miles south of Marietta.

Fannie Wade Pettycourt, 52, Akron, when the auto in which she was riding collided with another car in the city.
